Interests

Founder & Content Creator – YouTube Channel “Backpack Scholar

I independently conceptualized and manage the educational digital platform “Backpack Scholar”, through which I communicate structured academic and study-abroad information to a diverse student audience. This initiative has enabled me to apply digital marketing fundamentals, including content positioning, audience engagement, and online visibility management. Through end-to-end involvement in content creation, basic video editing, and performance observation, I have developed a practical understanding of brand communication and digital outreach. In parallel, my collaboration with student housing and education finance platforms has strengthened my exposure to outreach marketing, stakeholder communication, and peer-level guidance, reinforcing skills in customer interaction, networking, and information delivery within a professional and academic context.
